Longer-Term Recruitment Initiatives

Connecticut Public Broadcasting, Inc. (CPBI) uses a number of methods to recruit widely in the station's community, and to enhance and continually improve outreach. In addition, the company provides meaningful opportunities for its workforce to achieve professional advancement. Most of the following steps have been implemented by CPBI since March 10, 2004, with several initiatives utilized, as noted below.

1) CPBI Recruitment

CPBI provides broad outreach regarding job vacancies at the station. We seek the help of local community organizations in referring qualified job candidates to the station and distributing information about job vacancies.

Starting in November 2004, CPBI posted a form on its Web site inviting community groups, organizations and universities to receive notification by mail, fax and/or e-mail of open positions at CPBI. Interested community organizations that wish to receive job vacancy information are instructed to print out the attached "Community Organizations Notification Request Form" and fax the completed form to (860) 275-7450, or mail the completed form to Human Resources at CPBI. Once CPBI is notified of the entity's interest, CPBI will send mailings and/or e-mail notifications to the organization alerting it to any new and open position(s). In addition, CPBI provides job vacancy information to the following organizations:

- * Adult Vocational Services/American School for the Deaf
- * African-American Affairs Commission
- * Albertus Magnus College
- * Asnuntuck Community College
- * Capital Community College
- * Capital Workforce

2) Participation in Job Banks

Connecticut Public Broadcasting, Inc. advertises job openings in the State of Connecticut Job Bank/ CT Department of Labor; the Connecticut Association of Nonprofits Job Bank, the Connecticut Broadcasters Association; the Corporation for Public Broadcasting; and PBS Intranet.

3) Scholarships

In 2006, CPBI created a scholarship program for college students. The first scholarship was awarded in June 2007 to commemorate WNPR radio personality Faith Middleton's 25th anniversary hosting "The Faith Middleton Show." In 2008, the WNPR/Connecticut Public Radio 30th Anniversary Scholarship was awarded, honoring the station's milestone. And in 2010 and 2011, the CPBN Scholarship was awarded. In 2012, the CPTV 50th Anniversary Scholarship was offered. Eligible candidates included Connecticut residents who are studying broadcasting – or plan to study broadcasting – at a university, college, community college, or technical school. The scholarship program will continue to provide a deserving student with scholarship assistance to encourage the pursuit of a career in broadcasting.

4) Employment Advertising

CPBI often advertises available positions in at least one of the following media sources: the CPBI website, the Careerbuilder.com website, The Hartford Courant and the Current newspaper. Occasionally, certain high-level fundraising positions also are recruited through the Association of Fundraising Professionals and the Chronicle of Philanthropy.

5) Equal Opportunity Employment

All CPBI job advertisements specify that Connecticut Public Broadcasting, Inc. is an equal opportunity employer.

6) Internships, Work/Study and Volunteer Recruitment

Connecticut Public Broadcasting, Inc. has an active program to recruit interns, work/study students and student volunteers to introduce students to the broadcasting work environment. Students can obtain exposure to public broadcasting, including producing, engineering and technical work, as well as ancillary functions such as corporate communications. Interns generally work for CPBI for a summer or a semester, with CPBI working with the student and his/her university in defining internship components that may qualify for college credit. In addition, CPBI occasionally recruits from a variety of sources including www.volunteermatch.org and www.internships.com. Also, CPBI often provides tours of its radio and television production facilities to the public and organizations in the area. In addition, in 2010 CPBI established a Future Producers Academy; 18 elementary school students participated in TV production workshops for five weeks, culminating in two newscasts created by the student producers. In 2010, 2011, 2012, and 2013 CPBN partnered with Sand Elementary School in Hartford to create Media Is Magic, a SAND Media Enrichment program, where seventh grade students were taught technical media skills. In 2014, a media project was conducted with West Middle School in Hartford, students from the Journalism and Media Academy of the Hartford Public Schools participated in Blue Mic radio, multi-media reporting, the Film Institute and the Gaming Institute (after-school internship programs at CPBI), and CPBI hosted a "Journalist Boot Camp for adults.

7) Speaking Engagements

Connecticut Public Broadcasting, Inc. is often asked to speak to school groups and other groups about public broadcasting and careers in broadcasting. John Dankosky, WNPR News Director; Faith Middleton, WNPR Host; Donna Sodipo, Vice President of Education, and Jerry Franklin, President & CEO, acted as moderators and participated in speaking engagements at area schools as well as organizations during the reporting period.

8) Employee Tuition Reimbursement and Training Programs

Tuition Reimbursement - CPBI offers regular full-time employees the opportunity to take one tuition-free class per semester at accredited institutions within the Hartford Consortium for Higher Education (Capital Community College, Central Connecticut State University, Charter Oak State College, Goodwin College, Hartford Seminary, Rensselaer at Hartford, St. Thomas Seminary, Trinity College, University of Connecticut/Hartford, University of Hartford and University of Saint Joseph). Since December 2013, one employee participated in the tuition reimbursement benefit program under the Hartford Consortium for Higher Education program.

Training - CPBI sponsors training programs for its employees on a variety of workplace issues, including sexual harassment prevention training and stress and wellness management. In addition, during the past year, employees have had the opportunity to take part in training programs in the areas of computer software, graphic design, human resource management, media management, new media, TV and radio production, engineering, on-line applications, payroll and not-for-profit accounting.

9) Participation in Career/Job Fairs

In 2014, CPBI participated in a Career/Job Fair at Fairfield University. During the Career Fair, participants were able to submit resumes and learn more about CPBI's initiatives and programs. Several representatives from CPBI met with students and attendees and collected resumes from interested candidates for upcoming internship and job opportunities.
